Part 3 of Form ADV - Silicon Hills Wealth Management - Relationship Summary

April 16, 2020

Introduction: Silicon Hills Wealth Management is registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission as an investment adviser. Registration does not imply a certain level of skill or training. Brokerage and investment advisory services and fees differ, and it is important for you to understand the difference. Free and simple tools are available to research firms and financial professional at Investor.gov/CRS which also provides educational materials about broker-dealers, investment advisers, and investing.

What investment services and advice can we provide you?: We offer investment advisory services to retail investors. The services we offer to you include assistance with developing and designing an investment strategy with you to achieve your investment goals. We monitor your accounts on an ongoing basis and communicate with you periodically (but no less than annually) through telephone, email, and in person meetings. We offer advisory accounts for which we exercise investment discretion, i.e. discretionary accounts. A discretionary account allows us to buy and sell investments in your account, without asking you in advance. We do not limit the types of investments available to you. To open an account, the Adviser does not require a minimum account size. For additional information, please refer to our Form ADV Part 2A.

Additional Questions to Ask

Ask our financial professionals these key questions about our investment services and accounts.

- 1. Given my financial situation, should I choose an investment advisory service? Why or why not?
- 2. How will you choose investments to recommend to me?
- 3. What is your relevant experience, including your licenses, education and other qualifications? What do these qualifications mean?

What fees will I pay?: If you open an investment advisory account with us, you will be charged an ongoing asset-based fee based on the value of cash and investments in the advisory account. The fees you will be charged are assessed quarterly in advance. Additionally, you may pay transaction-based fees when the Firm buys and sells an investment for you in addition to the management fees we charge you for our advisory accounts. The most common fees and costs applicable to your retail investors include custodian fees, account maintenance fees, fees related to mutual funds and variable annuities, and other transactional fees and product-level fees. You will pay fees to a custodian that holds your assets (called “custody”). You will pay fees and costs whether you make or lose money on your investments. Fees and costs will reduce any amount of money you make on your investments over time. Please make sure you understand what fees and costs you are paying.

Additional Questions to Ask

Ask our financial professionals these key questions about the impact of fees and costs on investments.

- 1. Help me understand how these fees and costs might affect my investments.
- 2. If I give you $10,000 to invest, how much will go to fees and costs, and how much will be invested for me?

What are your legal obligations to me when acting as my investment adviser? How else does your firm make money and what conflicts of interest to you have?: When we act as your investment adviser, we have to act in your best interest and not put our interest ahead of yours. At the same time, the way we make money creates some conflicts with your interests. You should understand and ask us about these conflicts because they can affect the investment advice we provide you. Here is an example to help you understand what that means.

- Proprietary or Personnel Trading: We may employ the same strategy for our personal investment accounts as we do for your investment advisory accounts. However, we are generally prohibited from buying or selling securities in our personal or proprietary accounts where this decision is
